WinSport plays pivotal role in Team Canada's Olympic success

CALGARY – As Team Canada takes the world stage at the Milano Cortina 2026 Olympic Winter Games, WinSport is once again proud to play a central role in Canada's high-performance sport journey.

Of the 206 athletes named to Canada's Olympic team, an impressive 156 have trained or competed at WinSport facilities, including Canada Olympic Park, the Bill Warren Training Centre in Canmore, and training environments supported through WinSport's long-standing partnership with the Canadian Sport Institute Alberta. That represents more than 75 per cent of Team Canada's Olympic contingent, underscoring WinSport's role as one of the most important winter sport training environments in the country.

"Nearly 40 years after the Calgary 1988 Olympic Winter Games, athletes are still building their Olympic dreams right here in Calgary and Canmore," said Barry Heck, President and CEO of WinSport. "That legacy isn't just history—it's something we see coming to life every single day."

The 156 athletes with WinSport connections span a broad range of disciplines, reflecting the depth of Canada's winter sport system. Sports represented include alpine skiing, ski cross, bobsleigh, skeleton, luge, cross-country skiing, biathlon, curling, figure skating, freestyle skiing, hockey, ski jumping, and snowboarding.

The 2026 team also highlights the impact of WinSport's athlete development pathway. Eighteen Olympians are alumni of the WinSport-based National Sport School (NSS), which has operated at Canada Olympic Park since 2011. Sixteen of those alumni are competing for Canada, with one representing New Zealand and one competing for the United States.

WinSport's contribution extends well beyond elite sport. As a legacy organization of the 1988 Olympic Games, WinSport continues to invest in facilities, programming, and partnerships that support athletes at every stage—from grassroots participation to podium performance—while delivering significant community and economic benefits for Calgary and the region.
